

Psychotropic Drug List

Current at January 2011.

This is a list of psychotropic medications available in Australia. These are important medications for the treatment of a variety of health conditions, as the table below indicates.

These medications have been linked to an increased risk of falling, and this risk may be further increased if the older person is taking 2 or more different psychotropic medications.

Accordingly, many falls risk screening and assessment tools require clinicians to identify if the consumer is taking these medications.

This list intended as a guide for clinicians in identifying whether a consumer has been prescribed and is taking psychotropic (or psychoactive) medications(s).

If the consumer is taking these medications, the appropriate action is to refer to the medical officer for their review and advice. Careful consideration by the medical officer is required to balance the risk of falling against the risk from the conditions being treated by these medications.

This table has been developed in collaboration with the Medication Safety team, Department of Health.

For ease of uses, the medications are listed alphabetically, whether by generic name, or by brand name.
